REJECTIONS OF CLAIMS BASED ON PRIOR ART

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. ' 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. ' 103(a) as being unpatentable over the patent to Massey (3,451,187). The patent to Massey shows a packaging machine comprising of a support structure for a film supply on the side of the machine, rollers to grip and feed the film from the supply, a plurality of product dispensers 18, a longitudinal heat sealers 15 that from a plurality of seals in the film, a plurality of blades 61 aligned with the heat sealers to cut the sealed film into a plurality of strips, opposing cross heat sealers 20 and cross blades 75,76 to cut the film into individual bags. The longitudinal sealers, the cross sealers and the cross cutters reciprocate in the direction of the film movement.

The use of double film supply rolls (claims 1,9&17), independent reciprocating mechanisms (claims 2,10&17), opposing feed rollers (claims 3&13), and pumps (claims 5&15) are well known in the art and would have been obvious modification for their inherent benefits.

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. ' 103(a) as being unpatentable over the patent to Soleri (6,761,016). The patent to Soleri shows a packaging machine comprising of a support structure for a pair of film supply rolls on the side of the machine, rollers to grip and feed the film from the supply (Figure 6), a plurality of product dispensers (column 6, line 113-23), a longitudinal heat sealers 20 that from a plurality of seals in the film, a plurality of blades 21 aligned with the heat sealers to cut the sealed film into a plurality of strips, opposing cross heat sealers 22 and cross blades 18 to cut the film into individual bags. The longitudinal sealers and the cross cutters reciprocate in the direction of the film movement. Little patentable weight is given to the reciprocation of the cross sealers, since the claims merely recite that the cross sealers are "capable" to be reciprocated and not any mechanism to actually reciprocate them. Furthermore, the use of longitudinally reciprocating cross sealers that move with the film instead of rotating sealers that move with the film are well known in the art and their substitution would have been obvious to one skilled in the art. Regarding claims 3 and 13, Soleri shows opposing feed rollers in Figure 1 above the longitudinal sealers 20.

Although Soleri may be silent as to the reciprocating mechanisms, the use of independent reciprocating/driving mechanisms (claims 2,10&17) for different machine units is well known in the art and would have been obvious modification to enable separate control of each unit.
